

Vacant neighborhood in New Orleans. The white on the vehicle is from salt in the flood water. Notice the high water mark at the top of the vehicle.

MRE (Meal Ready to Eat) I consumed. You can heat up the entree with a pouch that heats up when you add water to it. Don't get the wrong impression, I have only had a couple of these as there is other food available; however, in most of the areas where we actually work each day there is nothing open, but it was kind of weird to eat them.

Beauty Store in a vacant strip mall with the window busted open. Its eerie driving around in the uninhabited neighborhoods; this was particularly eerie.

9th Ward in New Orleans

9th Ward in New Orleans near a levee breach. Notice the barge flipped over and on top of a house and school bus.

9th Ward in New Orleans

I-10 over Lake Ponchartrain. Only one side is open.

A completely destroyed town in Plaquemines Parish, south of New Orleans. Apparently, there was only one casualty in Plaquemines and it was due to a hard attack.

Neighborhood in Jefferson Parish, which mostly had wind damage and not flood damage.

ONE of the Refrigerator collection area. Yes these are all refrigerators.

Refrigerator collection area

Town in Plaquemines Parish